

Business

Every business needs a lawyer at some point. Businesses come to Tousley Brain Stephens for great service, solid legal advice and a lawyer who will team with them to find creative solutions. What they find is a firm that delivers greater value than they expected and that makes their business stronger.

Many members of our business law team have run a business. They bring a unique combination of legal know-how and business acumen that enables them to think creatively about positioning clients for success.

Our business clients range from individuals starting a new business to established regional and national companies, as well as international companies with U.S. operations. They are arrayed across all sectors of industry including technology, real estate, professional services, distribution and traditional manufacturing.

We advise our emerging business clients on issues including entity selection, financing, shareholder agreements and federal and state taxes. With established businesses, we act as outside general counsel, advising them on joint ventures, stock options, mergers and acquisitions, bank financing, securities offerings, commercial contracts, employment matters, as well as the full array of other legal and business issues they may face.

Businesses come to Tousley Brain Stephens looking for legal advice, what they find is a valuable business partner.
