

Class Action

Our class action practice has a national reputation for achieving exceptional results. Serving as lead and co-lead counsel in both state and federal courts cases in Washington and across the country, we have recovered more than two billion dollars in damages for our clients. We represent plaintiffs in cases involving product liability, consumer protection, securities fraud, improperly imposed taxes, defective building materials, hidden fees charged by banks and others, and environmental law compliance.

We have an exceptional track record of unraveling complex legal issues and rooting out the facts needed to reach a successful result. Our clients and partners know us to be hardworking, strategic and smart. More importantly, they trust our judgment and integrity, and they come to Tousley Brain Stephens knowing that we have not only a history of success, but also the ability to do the hard work needed to achieve the best possible resolution for the class.
